To the best of my knowledge, there are thirty-three churches in The Bahamas that identify themselves as Open Plymouth/Christian Brethren or Non-Denominational Churches of Brethren Heritage. These churches can be found in islands or districts of Abaco, North Andros, Cat Island, Eleuthera, Grand Bahama, Long Island, and New Providence. Some of these 33 churches fall under a federation of churches for legal purposes known as the Association of Assemblies of Brethren in The Bahamas. Some of the churches have formed their own legal association. The Association of Assemblies of Brethren in The Bahamas has an administrative centre in New Providence housed at the Christian Life Centre. A department created to assist financially the needs of full time itinerant workers (and to engage in varied evangelistic outreach or missions initiatives) is also housed at this facility known as the United Missions Department. Two children's homes have also sprung out of the work of these churches, the "Old Bight Children's Home" in Cat Island and the Children's Home in North Andros. Bahamas. Readers of this newsletter are asked to write in with the correct names, addresses and contact information where errors were made in this list.
